

WHOSE INDIA?

WHOSE WORLD?

On June 10, survivors of the ongoing Bhopal chemical disaster and their supporters stopped eating to demand that the Indian government place its own people's needs above the greedy appetites of transnational corporations like Dow Chemical, the very company responsible for Bhopal.

It's time to decide who India really belongs to. It's time for all of us to decide whose world this will be. This

Saturday, join hundreds of people around the world who will fast for one day in solidarity with Bhopal survivors on their 19th day without food. You can fast, or lend support in other simple ways - two things you can do right now are to fax and to call the Indian Prime Minister.
